Thousands Have Dread Pyorrhea (Riggs Disease) and don't know it till their teeth have to be extracted CYMPTOMS that may be PYOR-RHEA: Gums that bleed after brushing. Loose teeth (one or more, very loose or only slightly). Tender, sore, inflamed or receding gums.

What is Pyorrhea? Inflammation of the gums, due to irritation and infection at the roots of the teeth, destroying the jaw-bone sockets in which the teeth set and making you lose your teeth.

A test on school children in one of our largest cities recently showed that 30% of healthy gums contained Amebae parasites, such as are found in Pyorrhea; 50% of healthy gums with decayed teeth had these parasites; 84% of receding gums with tartar on the teeth and 94% of spongy receding gums. We are all in danger of Pyorrhea.

Until recently the only treatment for Pyorrhea was extraction. But scientists have just discovered that in Pyorrhea there are hosts of microscopic animal parasites called Amebae, and that a certain harmless South American plant has properties which kill these parasites.

Sozodont, that cooling, refreshing dendfrice that has delighted millions of mouths these 64 years, contains this plant.

Therefore wisdom says that you and your children should brush your teeth with Sozodont, which does more than merely clean.

It not only cleans, whitens, polishes the teeth-not only tastes cool and refreshing and sweetens the breath, but it also attacks the germs on teeth and gums and fights Pyorrhea.

Bring home some Sozodont today.
